HARVARD.

THE FOOTBALL TEAM AT WORK-QUICK AND

DETERMINED PLAYING. Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 8 (Special).—"Bloody Mon-day night," famous in the annals of Harvard, seems likely to become but a name. For several years it has been dying; the rushes between freshmen and sophomores have become less frequent and weaker, while the sentiment against them among faculty and upper classmen has grown stronger and stronger. There are as many punches as ever, but the custom started this year of giving a reception to the freshmen seems likely to supersede, to a great part if not wholly, these last relies of hazing it Harvard. At the reception on Monday night Professor Shafer presided, and speeches were made by President Eliot, Dr. Wolcott for the corporation, Moorfield Storey for the overseers, Professor Francis G. Peabody, Professor Taussig, Mayor Ban-croft, Maynard Ladd, '94, and B. G. Waters, '94. Beginning this year a most important regulation relative to the degree of Bachelor of Arts goes into effect. To be recommended for a degree of Bach-elor of Arts a student must not only have passed in all prescribed studies and in the requisite num ber of elective courses, but he must also have stood above grade D in at least one-half of his colleg work, and also in at least one-half of the work of his senior year. The faculty also announces the gift of two new scholarships of $150 each. By the terms of the deed they must be given to "dissent-ers" who are fitting themselves for the Christian

Among the football players there have been noticeable improvements. Brewer is interfering and rushing even better than last year. Gray has been rushing even better than last year. Gray has been injured and forced to stop for awhile, but will be out again this week. John Corbett has caught the football fever and decided to make a trial for the team. His work has so far outclassed that of any of the other backs, and he seems to be in much better form than last year. Dunlop, Beale and Lovering, the freshmen, are doing so well that they may be counted on as good, reliable men for substitutes to Brower Gray, Corbett, and Waters. substitutes to Brewer, Gray, Corbett and Waters. substitutes to Brewer, Gray, Corbett and Waters, Fairchild at quarter is gradually making himself the most andispensable of those trying for the position. In the line at centre and guards is Harvard's weak point, and it unfortunately comes where Yale is strongest. Lewis and Mackle are fixtures, and good ones at that, but for the other guard Harvard is vainly seeking. Laimbeer and Warren are improving daily and another year may do finely, but they are not strong smouth to buck the second of the second do finely, but they are not strong enough to buck against Yale's heavy men. Parker is a new man who used to play on the Massachusetts Institute of who used to play on the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and something may be made of him. Then there is Brice, a 200-pounder, but he has been out but once. It is a serious question in the minds of many if Waters will not himself have to fill the position. For other places in the line there is no lack of good material. Emmons and Stevenson, or possibly Collamore, can look after the ends with the best of players. Newell is certainly the strongest tackle in any college, and for the other one, Beale, Johnson or Baldwin, last year's Amherst player, can be trained up to the right point. The playing of the team as a whole is quick, sharp and determined, but lacking very much in concerted action. The defensive work is weakest of all, but the interference needs only judiclous coaching and persistent practice to make it very effective.

Captain Cook has opened the baseball season early. About twenty men are practising daily while the warm weather lasts. The prospects here are discouraging. Captain Cook himself is the only member of last year's team who will be eligible to play next spring under the new athletic regulations. In track athletics there is also considerable activity in preparation for the freshman and 'varsity games to be held toward the end of this month. Seven of last year's Mott Haven team are in training. Sixteen more are in college and will begin after Christmas. Among the new men there is much promising material.

The Glee Club has held its regular fall trial, and Technology, and something may be made of him.

UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA. Philadelphia, Penn., Oct. 8 (Special).-The need of a larger and more complete course in medicine has for some time been recognized by many of the for some time been recognized by many of the Medical Faculty, but the step was not taken until this session of the school, when there was in-augurated a compulsory four-year graded course, the entering freshman class being the first to come under the new rule. The opening exercises of this new course were held in the college chapel last Monday morning. The address was delivered by the provost, Dr. William Pepper. It was, of course expected that the first class to enter the new course would be unusually small, but the result has been beyond the expectations of the faculty. The enrolment of the freshman class will exceed 200, and the additions to the second and third year classes from other medical schools are large.

One of the finest baseball cages in the country One of the finest baseball cages in the country is now assured to the university ball players. Through the efforts of Louis C. Madiera, £5,000 thas been raised from the alumni alone; the remainder can be easily raised among the students. The plans of the building were handed to the committee on Friday by Frank Miles Day, the architect. It will probably be situated at the corner of Thirty-third and South sts. There will be no lack of room, as the floor space, clear of all obstruction, contains 14,400 square feet. A diamond will be laid out and a twelve-lap cinder track will surround it. There is some talk of erecting a wing to the building as a memorial to the late Clarence Bayne.

DICKINSON.

Carlisle, Penn., Oct. 8 (Special).-The law school opened on Wednesday with twenty-five new stu-dents, while others are expected. The total number now admitted to the three departments of the college is 150. Two new prizes have been secured this year. Colonel Willis McDonald, of Brooklyn, and John R. Suddon will give first and second prizes pectively to the best debates in the intersociety al Horatio C. King will lecture within a few before the college, under the auspices of the YALE.

NEED OF CHEAPER DORMITORIES AND LARGER INCOME.

New-Haven, Conn., Oct. 8 (Special) .- The students of Yale feel a deep interest in military affairs, as is evidenced by the fact that more than one-half the membership of the New-Haven Grays is composed of Yale students and instructors. The best soldiers of the company are these students and the same facility and completeness that have been so noticeable in their handling of the studies in the different departments of Yale with which they are connected. Professor Schwab, a member of the Grays, served considerable time in the German militia. He is one of the most popular professors ever in charge of Yale's classes of Political Economy. The chief social event of the week has been the marriage of Professor Schwab to Miss Fisher, a sister of S. H. Fisher, who graduated in '89, and who is also a member of the Grays.

Yale has grown so rapidly during the last five years that its need of funds has been constantly increasing. The many new and magnificent build-ings erected, while greatly increasing the class room and dormitory facilities, are not yet equal to the needs of the college. Not less than 500 stu-dents, probably more, are obliged to seek rooms in private houses more or less remote from the camprivate houses more or less remote from the campus. The prices charged for rooms are in most cases extravagantly high. Indeed, it is a subject of general criticism that the rooms in dormitories on the campus are not rented at as low a figure as they should be. Yale needs a dormitory that will accommodate 500 students, at a room charge of not to exceed $2 or $2.50 a week, but the most pressing need of the college is a number of large bequests, the income from which will be sufficient to employ additional teachers and pay those employed better salaries. Future efforts of President Dwight will include earnest solicitations for money sufficient to relieve the college of anxiety in regard to its ability to employ such instructors as it needs and pay them salaries large enough to prevent their being induced to accept other offers.

The opposition to compulsory attendance at chapel is more noticeable this year than ever before. The sentiment of the students is overwhelmingly against the daily morning service. The faculty, however, are firmly of the belief that it is of the highest importance that the chapel services should be continued, and President Dwight has on several occasions declared most emphatically that he would never consent to any change in the chapel requirements. The popular idea among the students is that there should be no chapel service in the morning, and that if any compulsory attendance at chapel is required, it should be at a service held in the early evening, or perhaps at noon. pus. RAISING MONEY TO RETAIN COURTNEY-VOT ING ON THE TRUE "SUN."

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 8 (Special).-Last week a meet ing of the Cornell Athletic Association was held to consider what might be done to prevent Charles Courtney's leaving Cornell and going to Harvard. Mr. Courtney's proposals were in substance as follows: He will remain at Cornell as ceach for the year 1893-4, on a salary of $1,200, provided that amount he raised before October 11; further, to remain not less than four years after 1893-4, on condition that before July 1, 1894, the athletic association shall have secured a definite guarantee of $1,500 annually. Representatives of the navy have undertaken to raise before October 11 not only $1,200, but the further amount of $1,400 cash to cover last year's deficit, part of which is due to Mr. Courtney. Seven hundred students are each pledged to give at least $1 for the navy, and these pledges are now being redeemed.

UNION. Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. & (Special).-One outcome of the larger number of students in the col-lege has been the revival of the old literary sojetles. Until recently it was thought that these rganizations were practically dead. The reasons commonly assigned for this decadence were the incoming of the secret fraternities, the greatly increased amount of classroom work in the English department, together with the outside reading made cessary by certain English studies. Recently however, the old literary societies have received a new impulse. Last year they did considerable work,

PRINCETON.

THE "UNDERGRADUATE RULE"-STRENGTH OF THE FOOTBALL TEAM-PRIZES FOR FRESHMEN

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 8 (Special).-The "undergraduate rule" is at present occupying the entire attention of the average undergraduate. The questions, "Will King play?" "Will Balliet play?" heard on all sides. The general impression prevails among the students here that both of these bul-warks will be on Manhattan Field when the game begins on next Thanksgiving Day, and will be there. not as spectators, but as active participants in the There is no need for defending Princeton's position in the present instance, yet a state-ment of the facts in the case may remove any seeming inconsistency on Princeton's part. Yale proposed the rule. Princeton was heartily in favor of it, believing that it would be beneficial to all concerned. It proved to be the exact opposite. Yale repudiated her own offspring in playing Kedzie and Greenway last spring. Its fosterfather, Princeton, cannot see why he should be com-pelled to establish a foundlings' home for the main-tenance of Yale's discarded children. The vote for reconsidering is a tie. It has not been reconsidered. It has not been ratified. It will not stand. Prince-ton will play King and Balilet, as Yale played Kedzie and Greenway.

There are at present thirty-five men at the 'Varsity training table. From this number there no reason why Princeton should not have a winning team. The one weak point is at quarter and unless there is great improvement in Dwight Turner or Poe it looks as though King would have to return to quarter. Excepting quarter, the team Balliet at centre and Hall and Wheele as guards present a front which is well nigh im-pregnable. The practice last week showed that the men were developing a fine interference and were playing with a snap which is far in advance of any previous year.

IN THE LOCAL COLLEGES.

COLUMBIA.

Columbia College opened last week with about the same number of students in the whole univer-sity as last year. The freshman class in the School of Arts numbers seventy-three, including special students, against 102 in 1891. The outlook for the future is somewhat brighter from the fact that seventy-two took preliminary examinations this year, while only forty-five did so in 1892. The faculty is much more strict than before in regard to heavily conditioned students. An unusually large number of sophomores and juniors have been dropped from failure to make up conditions. This is the second year of the election system, and it again promises to show that the students are worthy of the confidence placed in them. The following figures show the total number of students es of each department.

For the last few years there has been a different chaplain every month; this year the Rev. Dr. chaplain every month; this year the Rev. Dr. chaplain every month; this year the Rev. Dr. chaplain every month; this new taken the position permanently. He has issued a circular calling on the students to support him. He intends on three days of the week to deliver a ten-minute address on practical topics. The other two days he will answer all questions which have been dropped in a box set up for that purpose. He has made especial arrangements to meet the students personally, devoting considerable time to this each especial arranger on siderable time to this each day.

The arts freshmen have temporarily organized with E. Ellery Anderson, Jr., president, and John Prentice, secretary.

It was decided last spring that there would be no variety football team this year on account of lack of interest and material. If enough men will come forward, however, there will be a "scrub" team similar to the one last year. The freshmen football team, under the management of Beach, 35, and the coaching of Crowell, 36, has been hard at work all the week. On Wednesday they defeated Bryant & Stratton School 12—0, and Friday the '35 Featherweight Team.

On Friday all candidates for the freshmen crew were summoned to meet at the boathouse on the Harlem. In previous years work has not been begun until after the Christmas holidays.

PRATT INSTITUTE.

Since the instalment of the Pratt Institute exhibit at Chicago the trustees have sent out many of the instructors and their assistants to act in turn as curators. By this arrangement over twenty persons have enjoyed the World's Fair who otherwise might not have seen it. The Department of Libraries has entered upon a most successful season. Besides many special students in English composition and general literature, over sixty regular pupils are enrolled in the library-training and cataloguing classes. The curriculum of the library school has been enriched this year by the study of German. Professor Menco Stern has charge of this branch. In addi-tion to the main free library, with its 17,000 memtion to the main free library, with its 17,000 members, the department has a branch library at the Astral Apartment, in the Eastern District, and stations at various convenient points in the city for the delivery of books. Lectures on books of reference for the benefit of public-school teachers, members of the institute and of the libraries are to be held this winter on every Monday afternoof from 3:39 to 4:39.

The high school pursues the study of civics in a uffique and practical way by the holding of elections simultaneously with the actual events in the political world, Democratic and Republican primaries have been already organized and the candidates for the Mayoralty nominated.

BARNARD COLLEGE. The freshman class at Barnard numbers twenty-one, about the same as last year, although no heavily conditioned students were accepted. But the present quarters at No. 343 Madison-ave, are more over-crowded than ever by the great denands on the chemistry and botanical laboratories. Not only have a large number of special students in those courses been turned away, but there in those courses been turned away, but ther is not room enough for the sophomores, wh have elected chemistry. It is probable that room will have to be taken away from som other department and devoted to this purpose A large number of students are taking the cours in Greek art at Columbia.

THE TEACHERS' COLLEGE.

The extension classes of the Teachers' College, designed chiefly for those who are engaged in teaching during five days of the week, began on Saturday. Courses have been opened to such students in methods of teaching history, literature and Latin, in the science and art of teaching, the institutes of education, in several branches in-natural science, and in the various departments of enteen courses in all. It has also arranged to offer to all of those who take other courses a course of lectures on educational psychology, to be given by President Hervey and Professor Reigart, and a series of round-table conferences on questions of school organization and discipline. These conferences will be conducted by Professor Meleney, with the co-operation of school principals and superintendents.

A meeting of the Kinderkarten Union of New York City was held at the college on Saturday afternoon. Dr. Mary Putnam Jacobi read a paper on "The Utility of Scientific Training to the Teachers of Young Children," and Miss Angeline Brooks, professor of kindergarten methods in the Teachers College, addressed the meeting on "Play and Work."
